Anti-violent crime unit gets its message across

THIS WAY: an arrest is made by members of the Violent Organised Crime Unit

VIOLENT young criminals are having to rethink their lifestyles - behind bars - thanks to a string of impressive successes by the police's Violent Organised Crime Unit (VOCU).

The unit is backed by a £1 million yearly grant from Greenwich Council, the first local authority in the country to sponsor its own dedicated police team to combat organised youth crime.

VOCU focuses on murders, serious attacks, drug dealing and use of firearms and knives.

Unit leader Det-Ins Gary Holmes told GT: "We are taking a pro-active role in combating this form of criminality.

"The latest results confirm this, and the public can be re-assured that by locking away these criminals we are protecting all sections of the community. We are also deterring would-be offenders, who will think twice when they see these criminals being put away.

"We really want to reassure the residents of Greenwich that we are actively dealing with this type of crime.

Since the unit was set up less than two years ago, its efforts have resulted in:

In my opinion

Save cash as well as carbon

SIGNING up to 10:10 was a good move by Greenwich Council and I was delighted to see the front page story on the efforts that students from John Roan secondary school are making.

It's an exciting challenge which ought to help deal with one of the most serious issues of our time.

I used one of those online carbon footprinting websites to do my basic carbon footprint, and it turns out that my carbon footprint for the house and driving is just under four tonnes. I therefore need to find ways to save 400kg of carbon this year.

My first thoughts are that I could certainly drive a bit less. I'll try to walk more and catch the bus - there are plenty running from the end of my street.

I have already installed low energy lights throughout my house but I'm sure we could use less electricity by making sure that all the gadgets in the house are switched off rather than left on standby. It's surprising how much some of those things use when they are doing nothing! I've just popped down to the library to borrow one of those gadgets that show how much energy you are using - and it is quite shocking sometimes.

But it is helpful to see how I can save money and carbon by doing simple things. I've stopped boiling too much water in the kettle because you can see how much energy a kettle is wasting by heating up three mugs of water I'm not going to use.

I've also turned down the heating a bit and everyone in the house has agreed to make sure they wear clothing that's suitable for this time of year. You have to be careful with this one if you have people who might suffer health problems from being too cold. Talking of which, I've got someone coming round next week to check the loft insulation to see whether that needs topping up. I last had it done about 15 years ago so I'm guessing it isn't up to modern standards. I've talked to neighbours about all this and setting up a 10:10 group so we can share ideas to save carbon and cash!

GREEN LIGHT FOR GREENWICH OLYMPIC VENUES

Plans in place for O2 events

Games go-ahead big boost for the borough

PLANNING has been approved for the temporary structures needed at The O_2 Arena to host the Artistic Gymnastics, Trampoline, Basketball and Wheelchair Basketball events for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

The decision, made by Greenwich Council's planning board on February 17, approves the erection of temporary structures to manage vehicle and pedestrian access and temporary perimeter fencing.

The fencing is required to enclose and secure the venue and surrounding area and will comprise existing fencing, new temporary fencing and building frontages.

Council leader Chris Roberts told GT: "Greenwich Peninsula is a key regeneration area and the Olympic and Paralympic Games will increase its profile and provide the local economy and community with further opportunities.

"There are a number of exciting developments on the Peninsula, including the development of London's newest business district, the opening of Ravensbourne College, a further phase of The O_2 and more than 10,000 new homes.

"Hosting these prestigious sporting events demonstrates the success of Greenwich Council and its key partners and stakeholders in transforming this area and developing one of the most successful entertainment venues in the world today."

Temporary buildings will also be required for venue accreditation, a help office, workforce check-in and generator compounds.

The Arena, which will be known as North Greenwich Arena during the Games, will be in use until September 30, 2012, after which all structures and works will be removed by December 31, and the site will be restored to its former use and condition.

Extensive public consultation has taken place on the use of this site as a London 2012 venue.

GRAND SLAM: what spectators will see at The O2 at the London 2012 Olympics

- THE gymnastic and trampoline events will take place between July 28 and August 6, 2012. There will be three sessions on day one, four sessions on day two and then one session between days 3-10. A gymnastics gala will be held on August 7.
- FIND out how the council is preparing for the Greenwich games at www.greenwich.gov.uk/2012

Barracks will be ready for bigshots

THE Royal Artillery Barracks, Woolwich, has been confirmed as the venue for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic shooting events and Paralympic archery.

The seal was set when the planning application for the temporary use of land was approved at Greenwich Council's planning board.

The barracks will host the Olympic and Paralympic shooting events and the Paralympic archery.

Planning approval was conditional on full restoration of the site once the Games are over with significant improvements, including the planting of new trees, landscaping, new footpaths and cycle lanes.

RIGHT ON TARGET: barracks a great venue for the shooting

Council leader Chris Roberts said: "This decision means we can now concentrate on working together with the Olympic Delivery Authority and key stakeholders to make sure we deliver a spectacular event in 2012. We will ensure that all possible measures will be taken to minimise any disruption to residents during both the preparation works and Games-time. The Games are anticipated to bring significant regenerative benefits to this part of Greenwich and we can now work together to deliver these for the people of Woolwich."

Events will take place at the Barracks from July 28 to 5 August 5, 2012, for the Olympic Games and August 31 to 5 September 5, for the Paralympics Games. All structures will be removed and works to the site will be completed by the end of December, 2012.

Action stations after fire at Eltham Centre

by GT reporter

COUNCIL staff have been working hard to restore services for residents despite a fire in the mechanical plant and electrical systems of the Eltham Centre, which took place overnight on Saturday, February 13.

Cllr Sajid Jawaid, the cabinet member for modernisation, said: "The council would like to apologise for any inconvenience the closure of the centre may have caused. We are working hard to restore all services as soon as possible."

The library re-opened last Wednesday to allow residents to pick up and drop off library books, and staff are working to restore Internet services as soon as possible.

The main reception area is still closed, so advice services are currently operating from the Teen Zone in the library. This means residents can get general advice on council services and pick up application forms and advice leaflets, and council tenants can report repairs and get advice on tenancy issues.

Residents can also get advice by calling the council on 020-8854 8888, visiting the council's website - www.greenwich.gov.uk - or calling in at the Riverside Centre on Woolwich High Street.

Courses run by Greenwich Community College are taking place, where possible, at other centres, and the college has written to all students affected to update on their course provision.

Advice sessions from Citizens Advice are due to restart this Thursday (February 25).

Those missing their swimming, gym sessions and other leisure facilities at the centre are reminded that they can use other GLL leisure centres across the borough. Pre-paid members of GLL will receive financial compensation for the period that the Eltham Centre remains closed.

- Eltham Centre opening hours for library and advice services: 9am-5pm Monday to Saturday, 10am-4pm Sundays.
- Other leisure centres available:

Holiday that never was

I AM writing to let you know to tell your customers or readers about a con.
My husband got a phone call telling him he had won a holiday. He was given a phone number to call and find out about his holiday.
The lady gave him a reference number to tell the other people he was to ring. I checked on the web and could not make my mind up if it was a con - but two hours later the phone rang again and it was the same lady asking why my husband had not phoned the number she had given us. I said that I had looked on their website and it said we have to go to a meeting for two hours and, as my husband is disabled, we could not go. She said no worries and put phone down.
So was the holiday we won a lie and, if not, because my husband is disabled we did not get the holiday? So tell your readers to be careful if someone rings telling you you have won a holiday. I don't think it was a nice thing to do. I think it is a timeshare thing.

Why does only one get the gum?

I WOULD like to write about two elderly men who live in different flats in the same block. One is 58 and the other 71. The 58-year-old has given up smoking for good now, after he was diagnosed with cancer. He has recently been undergoing chemotherapy at Guy's Hospital. The other one, who used to smoke 30 cigs a day, including roll-ups, has cut down to 6 to 10 a day, but not diagnosed of anything. I contacted the Queen Elizabeth Hospital as they have a unit for people who have and want to quit smoking so as to get their help for these two gentlemen. One has only been receiving chewing gum from the QE. What about the other one?

Roy Nagalingum, Shooters Hill

●WE cannot comment on an individual patient's treatment but we do offer smokers a great deal of support if they want to give up. Our smoking cessation team give individual advice and there is a support network at www.greenwichsplash.org/ We are also supporting No Smoking Day on March 10 and there will be a launch event on March 6 in association with Charlton - Kick the Habit. There will be promotional events all over the borough.

Royal tolerance

GREENWICH becoming a royal borough wouldn't automatically be the main topic of conversation at our local pub, but when someone brought it up the exchanges, sometimes heated, were memorable.
As a self-confessed republican, I made the usual points, soberly I thought, but it was amazing how many people do actually feel strongly about how important the royal tag is in this country, especially in London.
What's always amazed me is how Australians consistently opt for being part of the British Commonwealth yet continue to bash the Poms at every opportunity and in a style that you would assume they would break free tomorrow. Not a bit of it. Our resident Aussie was Union Jacks as usual and all I could do was sit back, sip and smile.
But I'll tell you one thing. If having a monarchy in this country helps in the tolerance we share and enjoy every day then maybe it's not so bad after all. I was born in the same year as Prince Charles and I'd like to see him take the helm soon - quirkily.

B. Montague, Plumstead

Promoting equality and quality of life for all

Mentor be brave!

Students' cyber bid to beat the bullies

by Peter Cordwell

ALL FOR ONE: some of thecyber mentors at Eltham Green show their colours

THE good young people of Eltham Green secondary school are one for all and all for one against the cyber bullies.

Twenty-six of them have become fully-fledged "Cybermentors" to help and give advice to other children and young people being bullied.

It's reckoned that 70 per cent of young people in the UK have experienced some sort of bullying. "Cyberbullies" use social networking sites and texts to intimidate others.

The Eltham Green students got involved through 'Beatbullying', the charity that has set up the Cybermentors project, which offers online support to young people who can register on the site and get help immediately from other young people.

The students spent two full days training with Beatbullying development officers exploring bullying, taking part in role plays and practicing their new skills on the site.

Jake Oliver told GT: "This has helped us to understand what Cyberbullying is, different forms of it and what to do about it." Amy Plaice said: "The training has been brilliant. It's not been boring at all, there's been loads of games and exercises that help us learn."

The Cybermentors are bursting with ideas about how to promote the Cybermentors website to other young people. Some pupils have been so inspired they are considering bullying prevention as part of a future career.

Chloe Arnold said: "The two days' training have changed my outlook on life. Now before I say things, even if they are a joke, I will think twice. I am now looking to do an apprenticeship with Beatbullying because I want to continue to help young people who have been bullied."

Eltham Green headteacher Joan Pickering told GT: "At Eltham Green we have a zero tolerance policy towards bullying. I'm delighted that our students have embraced this project and are volunteering their time to support other young people across the UK."

The way we were...

Generations have played football on Blackheath. George Glazebrook, from his book 'The Way We Were', recalls one from 1937. Send your memories to 'The Way we Were', GT Communications, Woolwich Town Hall, SE18 6PW or email peter@cfjournals.demon.co.uk

Magazines for shin-guards

MAN ON: football on Blackheath in the 1930s. There were no nets apart from those in the players' imaginations. Illustration: Andy Brackley

IT is the afternoon of the big match and Horace, making out he is Charlton Athletic's Don Welsh, is stripping off. We are all packed in this structure called a dressing room near the Ranger's House on Blackheath.

Everybody is talking and ribald comments cross-fire as eleven pairs of deathly-white knees belong to our (Kentish Independent) printing works team stand out like fresh paint on flag-poles.

Horace climbs into dark blue, almost bloomer-like, shorts. He shouts at the room: ""They'll be carrying them out - they're the home team so it's not our job."

Herbert sits on a bench, a Players cigarette juts out from the corner of his mouth sending up smoke that makes his eyelid flicker.

He looks up from straining yards of thick white laces in fancy patterns around his boots: "Carry out what, Horace?" he asks, coughing.

"I thought we were playing Charlie F. Thorne's rabble not Messents the undertakers."

"I'm talking about carrying out the goal-posts," Horace explains, still shouting. "We pay for the ref, though - half-a-crown. We'll have a whip round at the end."

Herbert cuts in: "Doubt if we'll have the strength to move our arms and legs by then - let alone find our pockets," ge grunts, unkindly.

I am the youngest member of this scratch team and I am sitting alongside Owen. We are tugging at our socks and stuffing down old copies of 'Sports Budget' for shin-guards.

Owen is our goalie and he still smarts from the fifteen he let through against Siemens Sports third team in the mud of their Charlton Park Lane ground the other week.

"Cheer up, mate," I say to commiserate. "Could have been worse considering it was twelve to nothing at half time. Besides, they're a proper team with proper togs and a private pitch to practice on."

I reflected on our capers: Those kick-about training sessions on late summer evenings at Woolwich Common. A mound of coats down to mark the goal-posts and the old nine-panel ball we bought cheaply through some sort of Oxo wrapper collection. The mad chase to save the ball from being in collision with a tram rattling and swaying down Academy Hill. This usually from an almighty by Bob - tall, handsome Bob who is really a rugger man, you know. He went to the high school in Red Lion Lane - an Old Shootershillian, you might say. The dressing room now echoes with people standing up and testing their boot studs and bars by banging their feet up and down.

Percy is still sitting on the bench - he is the old man of the side. He appears ancient to me - like my father touching forty and a war veteran. He is packing thick magazines down his socks. Someone calls to him: "What you got down your socks, eh, Percy - let's have a butcher's you naughty old man!"

Now we are trotting across the Heath to our pitch somewhere in the distance - one of many placed in close proximity to each other. So close that goalkeepers crouch back to back and corner kicks and throw-ins can be ruined by flying wingers and sliding-tackles being performed on the other side.

It is not uncommon for one match to be engaged with two balls at a time - sometimes three or four - as ball-less teams battling and sweating on all sides scream for returns with dark threats of boots up backsides.

It is cold on the Heath and as we trot Owen and I make crowd-cheering noises hiss from our throats. We imagine we are running out from the tunnel at The Valley where there are real goal-nets and Jimmy Seed knows what great, local signings we are...

I thought we were playing Charlie F. Thorne's rabble not Messents the undertakers. I'm talking about carrying out the goal-posts

●IN his book, George dedicated this story to, among others, local teams Gorman Rovers, Verdun, Raglan Rovers, Woolwich Town Social and departmental sides from Woolwich Arsenal and Woolwich Borough Council. Anyone got any memories to add to his?

State of the ancient arts

Chinese artists run creative workshops for pupils

KEEN youngsters had a chance to create traditional arts and crafts with the help of expert artists flown in from China.

Pupils from five Greenwich schools enjoyed an exhibition and demonstrations of ancient Chinese arts before having a go themselves.

The pupils had been invited to a Folk Art exhibition featuring the work of artists from the Chongwen district in Beijing. The area is home to many places of historical interest and is at the heart of traditional handicrafts kept alive by modern-day artists.

The group included four government officials and ten artists who manned displays at Woolwich Town Hall where visitors could see examples of beautiful figurines in silk, dough and clay, kites, scissor sculptures and wooden birds. Pupils from Kidbrooke Park, Cherry Orchard, Notre Dame, Foxfield and South Rise primary schools joined workshops where they created their own kites along with intricate drawings and Chinese writing on canvasses of silk and rice paper.

The displays were held in Victoria Hall and the Public Hall giving local people the chance to have a close up look at a range of traditional Chinese arts and crafts. During the two-day display visitors could also meet the artists and watch live demonstrations.

The 14-strong delegation of Chinese artists from Chongwen came over in support of a friendship agreement between Greenwich Council and the Chongwen District.

They enjoyed a sightseeing tour in Greenwich and met members of the council as part of their visit.

Culture club

Olympic theme for school's Diversity Week events

by Rod Kitson

DANCE AND DRAMA: Middle Park pupils get in on the act with Cllr John Fahy, above, and Cllr Jackie Smith, below.

SCHOOLCHILDREN got a global education as they were treated to a week of special events to celebrate cultural diversity and the Olympics coming to London.

The events were held for Diversity Week at Middle Park primary, and lucky pupils got to try their hand at activities as diverse as African drumming and Greek dancing.

But before all the plates got smashed, there was time to cook up some worldly delights, an event that got a big – if sticky– thumbs up from the youngsters!

Eight-year-old Taylor Piro told GT: "Eating the food was my favourite part of the week – there were pitta breads and taramasalata."

Nina Allard-Gomes, seven, added: "I enjoyed the drumming and eating all the French food – cheese, bread and pain au chocolat."

To tie the scheme in with the Olympics, each class was named after a different host city.

Unsurprisingly, London was the most sort-after moniker, while Beijing and Barcelona were also popular.

"But the teacher who got Antwerp was a bit gutted," joked organiser,and deputy headteacher James Searjeant.

And while the all-singing, all-dancing week was a blast for the kids, there was a serious side too. James, leader of the innovations team at the school on Middle Park Avenue, Eltham, said: "Diversity Week was an opportunity to raise awareness of different cultures and celebrate the link between that and the Olympics, while raising the profile of drama, art, dance and music at the school.

"Each class has done an Olympic-themed event, some of the pupils have learnt some Spanish, and we've also looked at West Indian carnival," he added.

The week ran from February 8 to Friday, February 12, when an assembly was held for the whole school to share their experiences.

Each class did a mini-presentation of the dances and drumming skills they had learned.

Visiting the school was Cllr John Fahy, cabinet member for Olympics and Cllr Jackie Smith, Greenwich Council's cabinet member for children and young people, who said: "Diversity Week is a great way for children to become familiar with different cultures and learn more about the world as a whole. The staff have put so much effort in to organising the week, and linking it to the Olympics was a fantastic idea."

Support for carers who want to work

RECENT changes to benefit rules mean that extra support is available to carers who want to move into paid employment.

The help is available from Jobcentre Plus and in some cases there is funding for respite care while carers go into training. From April this year the earnings limit on Carer's Allowance will increase to £100 - it means that carers with part-time earnings may still be able to get Carer's Allowance if their earnings (after some deductions) are below this level. Carers with higher earnings may still be able to claim other benefits, depending on their circumstances.

The main benefit for carers is Carer's Allowance but there is a range of other benefits and payments that may be claimed. Greenwich's Welfare Rights Service is urging local carers to make sure they are not missing out on benefits.

Cllr Angela Cornforth, the council's cabinet member for health, adults and older people, said: "I meet many carers who are doing fantastic work in caring for their loved ones, but there are many who are struggling to do this on low incomes or without having claimed benefits. I would encourage any carer who has not had recent benefits advice to contact our Welfare Rights Service to check if they might be missing out."

● The Welfare Rights Service can be contacted on the Public Advice Line 020 8317 4872 (or 18001 020 8921 4900 for textphone users). Session times are Monday 2-4pm and Thursday 10.30am-12.30pm. Carers can also visit www.greenwich.gov.uk and select Benefits and Grants to use an online enquiry form.

● Greenwich Council provides a full range of other services for carers. Contact the Carers Team on 020 8301 8666 or visit www.greenwich.gov.uk /socialcare You can also call Greenwich Carers Centre on 020 8310 8677 or visit www.greenwichcarers centre.org

Food to write home about

The Old Post Office in Eltham puts its stamp on pub grub with attention to detail and an award-winning chef

THERE are few more pleasurable winter pastimes than sitting in a warm pub with a drink and a plate of hearty food. The Old Post Office in Passey Place, Eltham, is a relaxed and friendly location, divided into half boozer, half dining area, and ideal territory for whiling away a lazy lunchtime. The menu is clear and uncluttered, with all the classics you'd expect from a British boozer, but where the best offerings lie is on the specials board. Be warned though, the rate that the salt beef sandwiches fly out of the pub would suggest they are a firm favourite – by the time we arrived at 12.30, all the deli-style sangers had been snapped up.

No matter, the award-winning chef's steak and ale pie was a hearty delight, the beef braised to tender perfection, the sauce reduced nicely with plenty of mushroom and local brew flavours.

'Nic's Famous Home Made 6oz Beef Burgers' also appealed to the taste buds and a wide selection of kids' meals should keep the littl'uns happy.

Good prices, friendly service and a pleasant soundtrack rounded off what was a proper winter warmer.

Top tips to stop the spread of infection

HEALTH experts are reminding residents about the importance of maintaining good basic hygiene to help prevent the spread of viruses.

Good hand and respiratory hygiene practises can help to reduce transmission of all viruses says NHS Greenwich.

Public health advisers have issued the following tips which can help reduce the spread of infections such as Norovirus, a form of gastroenteritis known as the 'winter vomiting disease':

- Cover your nose and mouth when coughing or sneezing, using a tissue when possible.
- Dispose of dirty tissues promptly and carefully.
- Maintain good basic hygiene, for example washing hands frequently with soap and water to reduce the spread of the virus from your hands to face or to other people.
- Clean hard surfaces (eg: door handles) frequently using a normal cleaning product.
- Make sure your children follow this advice.

The 'Catch it, Bin it, Kill it' slogan is an easy way to remember to act to stop spread of germs.

CATCH IT - Germs spread easily. Always carry tissues and use them to catch your cough or sneeze.

BIN IT - Germs can live for several hours on tissues. Dispose of them as soon as possible

KILL IT - Hands can transfer germs to any surface you touch. Clean your hands as soon as you can.

- For further information visit the NHS Greenwich site at www.greenwich.nhs.uk
- DR Hilary Guite has been appointed as Director of Public Health & Well-being with NHS Greenwich.

She will lead a skilled team to introduce Health Checks Plus to screen over 40s with risk factors as part of a wider plan to ensure locals live full, active and long lives.

Home & Away Beverley Parkinson left London and is now enjoying life in Greenwich Connecticut. Here she writes about ...

Our Olympic sweetheart

WITH all eyes on Vancouver for the Winter Olympics – the focus here in Greenwich Connecticut is on the Dorothy Hamill ice skating rink for the figure skating competition. It is partly organized by the Town of Greenwich's Parks and Recreation department with the Windy Hill Skating Club which was founded in 1978 at the rink for the purpose of encouraging, developing and supporting all aspects of amateur figure skating. The Greenwich competition has a selection of skating events, which includes basic skills, free skate and test track levels.

Dorothy Hamill lived in Greenwich as a young child and won a gold medal for figure skating at the 1976 Winter Olympic Games in Austria at the age of 19.

Dorothy became America's sweetheart in the 1970s and her wedge haircut became a fashion statement. Dorothy has been married and divorced twice and has a daughter – her first husband was Dean Paul Martin, son of the movie star Dean Martin, who after their divorce was killed when his jet crashed.

WINTER SPORT: ice skating fan Beverley

Dorothy is still passionate about the figure skating world and has many fingers in many skating pies. She has skated in many ice skating performances such as Broadway on Ice, Nutcracker on Ice and the famous Ice Capades show, which she once owned with her second husband. She was inducted into the Olympic Hall of Fame and the Figure Skating Hall of Fame – and was very proud to co-run the torch into the Olympic Stadium at Salt Lake City Winter Olympics in 2002.

She also skated at the closing ceremonies with vocalist Harry Connick Junior (who resides in Greenwich's neighbouring town of New Canaan).

In addition to her many charitable pursuits, last November Dorothy implemented an I-Skate programme at the Kennedy Krieger Institute in Baltimore, to encourage children with physical disabilities to enjoy ice skating. The programme runs from late autumn through to early spring, for ages five to 18, and at the end the children showcase their work for friends and family. The institute runs a variety of sports programmes for children with physical disabilities, including swimming, wheelchair basketball, sitting volleyball, soccer and golf.

With the success of last year's Skating Fantasy Camp for adults, Dorothy will be repeating the camp this year. The camp is for over 21s of all skating abilities and takes place on the pretty island of Nantucket. Dorothy gives five days of exclusive personal training and instruction alongside world class coaches and celebrity skaters who demonstrate skating techniques.

Figure skater Rachael Flatt is part of the 2010 American Winter Olympic Team. Dorothy has been a mentor to her and they both trained for the Olympics in Colorado Springs, Colorado. So while you were watching the Winter Olympics, I hope you spotted Rachael, who is strangely somewhat connected to Greenwich!

Retail park offers support to help people quit

CHARLTON Athletic stars helped residents to give smoking the red card at a special launch event last month.

Defender, Kelly Youga and the Valley's Assistant Manager, Mark Kinsella, visited Greenwich Shopping Park off Bugsby's Way, Charlton, to launch the 'Kick the Habit' quit smoking programme.

They called in at the Boots store to launch the new campaign designed to provide professional support, tips and advice for shoppers who want to quit smoking.

Since then a team of five quit smoking advisers have been visiting the shopping park on Fridays and Saturdays as part of the 'Kick the Habit' programme.

For six weeks shoppers are being encouraged to meet with an adviser and talk through their progress.

The programme is being hosted by Greenwich Shopping Park which has teamed up with Charlton Athletic Community Trust and NHS Greenwich. It's part of a wider initiative set up by Charlton Athletic's Community Outreach department in 2006 in partnership with NHS Greenwich and Greenwich Council.

Deb Browne, Kick the Habit development manager from Charlton Athletic Community Trust and NHS Greenwich, said: "This is the first time we 've hosted the quit smoking programme at a retail park and we're really pleased with the park's support."

Charlton FC defender Kelly Youga, said: "As a footballer, smoking could seriously damage my performance on the pitch as well as my health.

"I wanted to get involved and show everyone that the right support is out there, if you're willing to give quitting a go."

Salman Siddiqui, Boots store manager said: "Over 114,000 people die each year in the UK due to smoking-related illnesses, and anything we can do to help reduce that number is worthwhile.

"So many people want to give up smoking, but struggle when it comes to getting the right support. We hope these free sessions can help people kick the habit for good."

NO SMOKE: above, Kelly Youga gives it some puff with a stop smoking adviser, left Mark Kinsella gives smoking the red card offenders being convicted and jailed

- 15 knives and 22 guns seized
- 52 seizures of Class A drugs such as cocaine, crack cocaine and heroin
- Cash totalling £140,128 seized
- 121 warrants issued
- Evictions from 15 council or social landlord properties, with the police helping council officers with eviction orders.

Working closely with VOCU is Greenwich Council's Community Safety Team. Its work includes liaising with central government in order to tackle violent crime, plus dealing with issues such as anti-social behaviour and domestic violence.

The team also liaises closely with estate and town centre wardens, and collates details of crimes. Team members also co-ordinate public meetings with the police and take part in a monthly forum to discuss concerns such as drug dealing on estates, begging on the street, and sales of pirate DVDs.

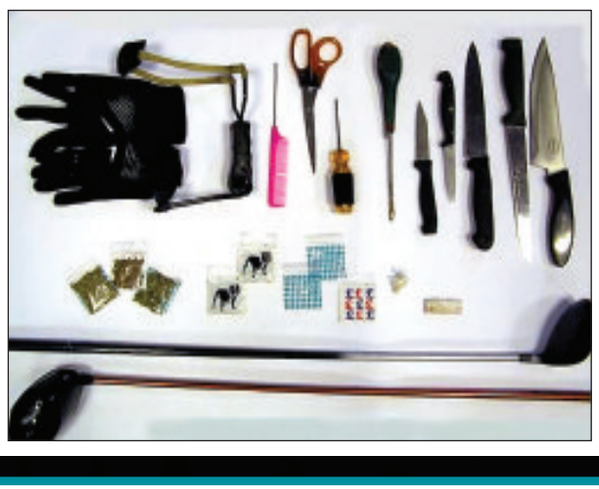

"We have a big problem with people not reporting crime," said senior community safety officer Adam Browne. "Some people don't want to get involved. But every bit of information adds value, and we use it.

"Residents may feel there are lots of drugs on a particular estate, but if we are not told about it when it's happening, the police can't do anything.

"There is a non-emergency number on 0300 123 1212 for reporting tip-offs or information after something has happened, and I would encourage people to make use of it."

Det-Ins Holmes added: "If any members of the public have any concerns, or see something that could be of interest to us that's not an emergency, then please call us on 020-7240 1212 and ask for Greenwich Police Station.

"We will treat all information sensitively. Alternatively, people can ring Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111."

- VOCU officers spent four months patrolling estates in Greenwich to gather intelligence to target youth violence. More than 160 young people were stopped and searched, five cannabis warnings issued and 13 people were arrested for offences including GBH, robbery and possession of drugs. These patrols were focused around the Connaught, Barnfield and Woolwich Common Estates in an attempt to disrupt the drugs supply. Weapon sweeps were also conducted and a large number of knives and weapons were recovered from areas such as lift shafts and electricity cupboards. A blank firing pistol and several shotgun cartridges were also found.

- The unit got a search warrant for an address in Eltham and found a bag containing a sawn-off shotgun, a Tazer, live ammunition, cable ties and duck tape. This was described as a "happy bag" as it contained all of the items needed to commit a serious offence such as armed robbery. The suspect stood on trial for this offence and was convicted and sentenced to seven years in prison for possession of a loaded firearm. Greenwich Council was also able to recover the tenancy of the property after the conviction.

VOCU has also formed strong partnerships with other council teams, schools and commuinity groups across the borough.

● Officers from the Violent Organised Crime Unit (VOCU) unit have developed strong links with the council's Corporate Anti Fraud Team (CAFT), working together to investigate benefit frauds and reclaiming council properties. The VOCU team also has close links within Greenwich Council Housing Services and Community Safety Teams, which allows a free flow of information sharing.

● STEIP - the Support Through Early Intervention Panel - is a council-run intervention programme targeted at groups of youths involved in anti-social behaviour and low-level criminality. The VOCU team refers youngsters like this to the STEIP so that they are offered opportunities to divert them away from trouble.

● The VOCU team and Greenwich Youth Offending Team have formed strong links to share information around violent young offenders and individuals that are believed involved in crime.

● The Anti-social Behaviour Team is run in partnership between Greenwich Council and Greenwich Police to target anti-social behaviour across the borough. The aim is to prevent and deter disruptive behaviour by implementing restrictions on criminal behaviour such as Anti-Social Behaviour Orders or Acceptable Behaviour Agreements.

● Liaison has been set between the schools, schools officers and the VOCU team to ensure that information sharing is implemented. This has enabled a flow of information from the schools, through to the police and back again in an effort to prevent incidents of violence and so that vulnerable individuals can be identified and deterred from criminality. VOCU officers have visited a number of schools in the borough to talk to teachers about concerns that they have. Several referrals have been made to STEIP in conjunction with schools officers, teachers and parents.

● Plumstead CID received information that a firearm was being stored at a flat in Woolwich, and VOCU officers obtained a search warrant. Supported by firearms units, they executed the warrant in the early hours of the morning, taking with them a firearms recovery dog. A live Brocock pistol, ammunition, three blank firing pistols and a shotgun was found. Money and drugs believed to be cocaine were also recovered. Two men were arrested at the scene. One was charged and later found guilty of possession of a Section 1 prohibited firearm. He was later sentenced to eight years in prison.

●An address in Marshbrook Close, SE3, was searched after information was received that it was being used for drug dealing. Two people were arrested, about 60 rocks of crack cocaine were seized and £1,130 forfeited. The council has reclaimed and secured the premises and one suspect was sentenced to three years in prison.

Greenwich Council's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 173

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Council's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed.

Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to:
For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time.
For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

Band

A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.

B is for applicants the council must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.

C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

1 Get on the list
First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, get an application form by phoning the Access and Allocations Section on 020 8921 2941. Or pick up a form from any neighbourhood office.

2 Find your applicant number
It will be on the letter you've already had from the Council about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

3 Pick out your ideal property
by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:
www.greenwich.gov.uk/homes
Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free in either your neighbourhood housing office, library or UK Online centre.

4 Apply in one of two ways
- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Council's website

In order to be considered you must be:

- a Council or Housing Association tenant

For more information contact the Project Team on tel: 020 8921 2671 textphone: 020 8921 2996/2657

Please ensure that you only bid for properties that you are genuinely interested in. If your bid is successful and you then fail to attend the arranged viewing your priority could be removed or your application suspended.

Bands A&B priority applicants

Fewer Bands A&B priority applicants have been bidding for advertised properties in recent weeks. Please note that if you do not bid on a regular basis you risk losing your priority status.

Please contact the office if you need help in bidding.

Multiple viewings are arranged for all advertised properties including those from Registered Social Landlords. This means that:

- the top three eligible households who successfully bid and are eligible for a property will be invited to view the property.
- each household will receive a letter giving them an appointment to view the property and telling them their position on the bidding list, ie 1st, 2nd, 3rd (this position is based on the applicant's registration date or date of priority).
- following the viewing, the property will be offered to the highest placed applicant who accepts the property.

If you have any queries regarding multiple viewings you can contact us on 020 8921 2941.

Prolific producer/singer/writer De'Jon has tasted success on the internet. Now he's hungry to further his career in the business

THE beauty of the internet as a platform for music is its ready accessibility for upcoming artists.
While the days of huge advances and million-pound record contracts may be a thing of the past, there are more musicians than ever working with a DIY ethic to produce their own albums, singles and music vids.
It's a double-edged sword for Mottingham musician De'Jon Piere. Because a precocious talent like his - in times past - would have been snapped up by a record label in no time, affording him the money - and the time - to develop as an artist.
The flip side is that in music's current, ever-changing visage, it's easier than ever to get yourself out there, with no time spent waiting on third parties to finish all the time-consuming technicalities that go with a big budget record.
Of course, all this does mean that the web is flooded with gazillions of low budget releases that never get heard by anyone and have production values slimmer than EMI's hopes of holding on to Abbey Road.
But the positive side is that an aspiring artist like De'Jon can get himself on iTunes and sell thousands of records off his own back… And not have to give most of the proceeds to fat-cat label bosses.
While an ever swelling sea of artists are setting their albums afloat on iTunes, few can boast sales in excess of 5,000 copies - which is exactly what the ex-Crown Woods pupil has done with a catalogue of four albums to his name, all in the course of just three years.
The 26-year-old had been writing and producing his own music for seven years before his debut release, Honest, in 2007.
For an independent release, the record was a huge success and sold over 3,000 copies through the online Apple store, a success that happened almost by accident.
"I started out just making music for my own amusement and putting it on MySpace," the musician told Scene.
"People were really into my tunes - I just sort of built a fan base without really trying."
De'Jon's second album, Individualism, was a bolder offering, and although less commercially successful, was a braver piece of work. The lyrics to the title track made clear the singer's intentions: "People say I'm weird, People say I'm strange; I don't follow crowds, I make my own trends."
Looped over a lolloping groove pitched somewhere between house, R'n'B and garage, the vocal line and arrangement root the track in an Electro-land inhabited by descendents of the Pet Shop Boys and more recently, Hot Chip.
Willfully experimental, the Mottingham man's output is so diverse it's a tricky thing to categorise.
He said: "I've got a sound that's hard to define as a genre – I think 'experimental pop' is about the best description I've heard."
The measure of an artist who has that indefinable 'it', ('The X-factor' is a phrase that has been hijacked precisely by those who don't have it, rendering it useless), is, among other things, an insatiable ambition, and where many unsigned acts would be positively snoozing on their laurels, feet up, no doubt, on a nearby bushel, De'Jon has his sights set on shifting hundreds of thousands of records – online or otherwise.
"I am frustrated," he admitted, "I want to take it to the next level, to break through.
"I have had interest from the major record labels, but they can be really fickle – one minute they want you, the next they don't."
And in the role of producer, the prolific artist has worked on tracks with other singers.
"I've been writing for other people too. I usually listen to what I've written and if I can't sing it, I'll get someone in who can. A collaboration I worked on is playing in Sports World shops up and down the country – I used to work there and they put it on their playlist, where it has stayed."
His latest offering, (The Ultimate Remix) was out last week, and the all-rounder's musical probings have seen him experiment with various genres, and yet another album -out this summer - is a move towards guitar band territory.
"I've been listening to The Script, Kings of Leon and Coldplay," De'Jon added. "The new album is going to be more of an Indie record. I want to aim this one at the major labels, so I've made it more commercial sounding. It's going to be called This Is De'Jon Xklusive and will be released on my birthday, August 25."

I am frustrated. I want to take it to the next level, to break through. Major labels can be really fickle.

Barn dancing

Raising the barn

AFTER a year without the energised strains of Cajun music wafting from the upstairs windows of the Tudor Barn, the Cajun Barn is back in business.
On March 4, the newly refurbished top floor of the venue on Well Hall Road will once again be alive to the sounds of fiddles, guitars and stomping feet.
The night – on every 6-8 weeks on a Thursday or Friday – hosts some of the best names from the Cajun music scene, a style of music that evolved in Louisiana, USA, after French Canadians were chased out of their adopted homeland with their fiddles between their legs.
And a top band of pan-American musicians gets the opening night in full swing before jetting off on a European tour. Scene would tell you what they are called but it's a bit of a grey area.
Organiser Steve Lane said: "The band don't actually have a name. They are three fantastic Cajun musicians from Louisiana, Jesse, Joel and Linzay - we usually make up a name for them and they say, 'great'!"

Doors open at 7.30pm and the band take to the stage at 8.15.
Donations welcome on the door

Quids in at BME

Cheap tickets for all residents to mark attraction's 1st birthday

THE British Music Experience celebrates its first birthday next week.

And to mark the occasion the BME is offering tickets to Greenwich residents for just £1. All prospective punters need do is take a utility bill or other proof of address to the box office on the day. It's that simple.

Since its unveiling last March thousands of music lovers have piled through the doors, and the cutting edge interactive exhibits have proved a popular innovation, especially with younger visitors.

Housed in the bubble exhibition space at The O_2, the space comprises seven separate pods that come off a central 'hub'. Lauren Laverne (via the medium of t'telly) hosts a charming, if overly in-depth, look at the exhibition before it begins proper, taking you on a tour of the exhibits you are about to see. Each of the seven pods house a different era or genre from the country's brightest pop stars – and some that we've adopted too (the 1966 Hendrix costume is a must see for Jimi fans). So there is something for pretty much all ages and tastes, and while there are no new attractions to herald the year milestone, there are thousands of priceless artefacts from over 50 years of British music, and new features are being added all the time. A particular triumph is the 1990s room – plenty of info on the giant timeline projected on the wall with informative voiceovers and snippets of the great music of the time. Stone Roses' bass player Mani's legendary paint splattered Rickenbacker takes pride of place next to all your other favourite *Mad*chester icons' memorabilia, and there is plenty for punk fans to enjoy too, with a look at the cultural and political goings-on and their influence on the angry young men – and women - of the time. The 'swinging' Sixties are also extensively documented – the aforementioned Hendrix attire as well as a Mick Jagger jumpsuit and a guitar that was smashed up by Pete Townshend himself.

But it's not all about older music, there is a room dedicated to noughties output as well as a dance studio that allows users to take home a video on their 'smart ticket' – a nifty innovation that also allows users to swipe extra info on their favourite artists to read up at home.

On exiting there is one of the highlights of the exhibition, a visual and sonic treat akin to being at legendary concerts through the ages – Led Zep, David Bowie and the Beatles to name but a few - all projected in apparent 3D, complete with barriers to give the authentic gig experience. In a way it's a shame that it comes at the end of the tour, as many may not be prepared for another exhibit on the way out and could pass it by.

London Fashion Week top trends

FROM classic British style such as Burberry, Prorsum and Mulberry, to more eclectic designers who push the boundaries of fashion like House of Holland and Christopher Kane, British style is varied and unique. Some of Britain's top designers arrived in London last week to showcase their latest collections at London Fashion Week, and here's a rundown on how to incorporate the hottest LFW trends into your personal look.

Candy Colours

Every season has an 'in' colour and for LFW 2010, it was 'candy' colours. Think lemons, baby blues, demure pinks and mint greens in sheer and floaty fabrics to achieve this girly look. Luella and Christopher Kane are making good use of this season's prettiest palette in their latest collections, as well as our high street favourites. We love this pale pink silk dress with lace detail from River Island, which ticks all of the trend boxes. If you want to toughen up your candy colours, try adding some masculine tailoring or materials, such as blazers and leather jackets, or some killer heels.

Double Denim

Double denim might scream 1980s, but this year the Brits are back doing it, with Mulberry, House of Holland and Twenty8Twelve making it officially cool to wear head to toe denim. Add some texture by wearing frayed jeans and jackets with detail, or accessorise by adding chunky belts and jewellery to help break it up. The high street has quickly caught on to the double denim craze - this denim shirt and denim shorts combination is bang on trend.

Trench coats

Quintessentially British designer Burberry is famed for its iconic trench coat, and the trench is making a comeback in 2010. From short sleeves to no sleeves, cinched in at the waist with matching or contrasting belts, bright coloured to classic cream, short to long, and formal to left undone. Aquascutum, Pringle and Burberry, all are introducing the trench of today at LFW. From the high street for the contemporary trench look, try this lace patterned trench on a budget.

Fashion retailers New Look, Dorothy Perkins at Outfit, Next, H&M and River Island are available at Greenwich Shopping Park, Bugsby's Way, Charlton

Film

THERE are many times when you just want to see a bit of action and stop thinking about work, school or whatever it is that's eating you.

This is where the popcorn movie comes in. It all happens up there to someone else and you just gape at the screen in slack-jawed wonder. Solomon Kane is such a film.

Set in a medieval past where evil stalks the countryside, Solomon Kane, the eponymous hero, must face the forces of evil with the limited technology of the day. It is so easy to get this sort of film wrong, but when it's right it can be very entertaining. And on this occasion, director Michael J. Bassett has got it spot on. The cinematography and special effects are great, and the story comes courtesy of the hand that penned Conan The Barbarian. Created in 1928 by Robert E. Howard for US Depression-era pulp magazine, Weird Tales, Kane had been pretty well overlooked for 80-odd years.

SOLOM-ON FIRE: A still from the all-action film

But Solomon benefits from the current vogue for witchcraft and swords 'n' sorcery which has seen the likes of Harry Potter, Twilight, and The Lightning Thief make big box office and there will be no shortage of fans for this. James Purefoy stars as the polemic Kane, while Pete Postlethwaite and Mackenzie Crook also do their bit for Blighty Filmstars Inc. Mum and Dad may also find that it is a surprisingly good film – a guilty pleasure, no less.

Parky know-how does the trick

made one of those unglamorous but vital saves that are all down to a firm grasp of diminishing angles.

At the other end, Alex McCarthy promptly responded with a tit-for-tat stop of his own. Left exposed as Burton cleverly dummied Lloyd Sam's pass, he stood tall to frustrate Nicky Bailey with an outstretched left leg. Of the chances, Bailey's was the more clearcut.

This masterclass in goalkeeping without the use of hands was extended on 19 minutes. Shaun MacDonald's fine cross from the left touchline cleared Jackson's head at the far post, was controlled by Williams but fired into Elliot's redoubtable shins. To his credit, impressive debutant Jackson had recovered enough to harass the striker in the act of shooting.

The visitors were not quite through for the day but, inspired by quicksilver wingers Kyel Reid and Lloyd Sam, Charlton took control. David Mooney blasted Frazer Richardson's measured pass over the bar with a breakthrough looking inevitable by the time Reid eventually did the trick.

Picking up a loose ball in his own half, the rapid wide man advanced into range he clearly fancied before detonating a venomous 30-yard drive which a startled McCarthy could only fumble into the net. The goal proved to be the highlight in Reid's outstanding performance but Elliot's brilliance was quickly required to protect the lead.

Bailey might have been fouled in conceding the right wing corner which Arron Davies swung outward on to Owain Tudur Jones' head, but from eight yards Town's new loan signing seemed certain to resolve any dispute. Almost miraculously, Elliot contrived to parry a ball most of us were grateful to even see. Some keeper, this young man.

Before the interval, Reid shot narrowly wide and Sam finished a determined run with a drive which shaved the bar but Charlton, without a clean sheet in 11 games, were still a distance from the winners' enclosure.

A second goal was their priority and Mooney duly popped up soon after the break to end a strikers' drought with his fourth of the season. Richardson's quickwitted throw sent an alert Therry Racon to the right byline as Town perceptibly relaxed, the midfielder carefully slid a pass back to Mooney and the Irishman blasted fiercely into the roof of McCarthy's net.

The rest was fairly plain sailing for Charlton though Elliot was required to get down smartly to turn an effort from lively substitute Gavin Tomlin to safety.

The rarity of a relatively routine afternoon allowed manager Phil Parkinson scope to take stock of his resources, among which the astute loan acquisitions of Reid and Jackson will ease his furrowed brow.

Reid complemented Sam in attacking the visitors on both flanks, with the often maligned Sam regularly double-marked by opponents all too aware of his threat. Jackson performed creditably along the left touchline, making an extension of his 28-day loan spell a matter of some urgency.

Elsewhere, the boss's decision to recall Miguel Llera was handsomely vindicated by the towering Spaniard's sturdy contribution. All in all a managerial tour-de-force, which promises to kickstart Charlton's faltering season again, even allowing for Yeovil's feeble resistance.

Perhaps he does know, contrary to some occasionally vicious criticism, what he's doing. He's got the know-how. Now he needs a little luck.

Lightweight Addicks struggle

THAT tightrope Charlton have been walking in recent games finally snapped on Monday last week with the 2-1 defeat at Britsol Rovers, writes Kevin Nolan.
Their fall was painful but not necessarily fatal because adversity sometimes brings out the best in them. That remains to be seen.
No more than 30 seconds of this ill-fated encounter had elapsed when things went wrong. The reckless tackle with which Dominic Blizzard chopped down Grant Basey deserved a red rather than yellow card from eccentric referee Kettle, sparing the unrepentant Blizzard to haul down Nicky Bailey in the penalty area later in the half. Bailey went down dramatically but a foul's a foul and Kettle's decision to caution the skipper for simulation hardly endeared him to an already incandescent Phil Parkinson. The unfortunate Basey, meanwhile, had departed with a suspected broken tibia.
The various controversies don't, of course, disguise the fact that Charlton were outclassed. A string of fine first half saves by Rob Elliot and a meaningless added time strike from Therry Racon merely distorted the scoreline.
Starting on the back foot, as usual, the Addicks fell behind when Chris Lines flicked on Stuart Campbell's corner for Steve Elliott to bury a fine volley at the far post. Rovers' lead was doubled by Paul Heffernan, who pounced on Sam Sodje's wayward header, outpaced Christian Dailly and fired confidently past Elliot. Sodje Sr. should also have conceded a penalty for needlessly mowing down Lines.
As Parkinson rings the changes, he will be troubled by his forwards' inability to score. This was their fifth successive blank in a season during which they have contributed just 15 goals from open play, with Deon Burton bagging eight of them.
According to Mark Twain, there are "three kinds of lies; lies, damned lies and statistics". Well, these statistics reveal nothing but the truth. And the truth is that Charlton are chronically lightweight up front.

ADDICKS FALL OFF THE TIGHTROPE AT WALSALL
Nolan report - PAGE27

Over the Mooney

Timid Yeovil just what the gaffer ordered

Charlton Athletic 2
Yeovil Town 0

by Kevin Nolan

You could say that Yeovil Town were almost handpicked visitors to The Valley as Charlton sought to break a winless streak of five games.

They were diffident, timid and passive - an argument could be made for any or all three descriptions - but, oddly enough, had it not been for Rob Elliot's excellent first half goalkeeping, the Glovers might have given the Addicks a much rougher ride.

Still a month short of his 24th birthday, Elliot has stepped up to solve a problem which has troubled the club since Dean Kiely was ill-advisedly allowed to leave. If Alan Hansen was proved incorrect about "kids winning nothing", he was on more solid ground in claiming that "you get nowhere without a reliable goalkeeper". Charlton have no worries in that area.

Nine surprisingly open minutes had elapsed, during which Deon Burton scuffed wide a presentable chance created by brand-new Addick Johnnie Jackson, when Dean Bowditch's subtle pass sent Sam Williams through to confront Elliot one-on-one. The advancing keeper's legs
